ABOUT RICHIE BARROW

Following a decade in the hospitality industry in Europe, Richie Barrow spent the better part of the last decade as a driving force behind the growth of the Kenyan food and bar scene. He has consulted on innovative concepts as well as spirits coming out of the region and holds roles at the forefront of advancing cocktail culture as well as the hospitality industry across the region.

He currently heads up the Food and Beverage programme for Tribe Hotels Group and has been recognised as a trend leader in the region - some might call him a "mover and shaker in the East African market" - running some of Kenya's best bars and restaurants.

As a founder of the Nairobi Bartenders Association, he has a strong commitment to nurturing emerging talent and mentoring globally successful bartending competitors. Richie has a passionate drive to elevate Kenya and East Africa's profile on the global map and letting it shine for its diverse and vibrant restaurant and bar scene.
